WELCOME TO Utterly FABULOUS

Thank you so much for your wonderful response to the first edition of this magazine. From your letters and emails it is clear that you are all agreed that the new magazine is ... Utterly FABULOUS.

Your messages were truly motivating and have spurred us to increase the number of pages from 16 to 24 and to increase the size of our print run to the highest circulation of any mag in the TG world. We are increasing our endeavours to get support from main stream business who should be taking the transgender market more seriously. With this support we will be able to continue to provide a free ALL inclusive magazine that aims to support and promote ALL events and ALL opportunities on the TG scene throughout the UK.

THANK YOU TO ALL OUR CONTRIBUTORS who have supplied such terrific help, pictures and reviews. Through this magazine you are helping our community to mature and grow.

LOOKING FORWARD we know of plans for a tranny trip to Las Vegas and another to Paris by the community's leading movers and shakers. The Transfandago event (page 6) was such a success that it will become a regular September event. Martine Rose is adding a new event to the Repartee calendar (page 10).

CHECKOUT OUR NEW WAYOUT PRODUCTS after reading our Alternative Miss London photo spread (page 19) - with thanks to Georgina - and then order the new 7th WayOut 'home' video to watch the event again and again. Also in the WayOut shop you will see a new range of sexy fantasy story books direct from California and illustrated by my friend Tee Je.

THE NEW WAYOUT RESTAURANT (page 22) is fast getting a great reputation for the value, quality and choice of food. Where else in the world can you find a discrete dining opportunity uniquely catering to TGs and friends just a stones throw from your favourite Saturday night clubs?
 Book now for your Christmas meal

WORKING HARD AT IMAGE WORKS, Pan and her team have not only created yet another great cover and photo features but have also done it at the same time as the last exhausting throws of moving into the new Image Works palace, and all with a smile. This girl's good under pressure - she can keep the job. Congratulations to Pan and her elves - your new premises is fantastic and your customers are going to be stunned and amazed.

A NEW INTERNET SERVICE compliments Jodie's reviews of our new WayOut Restaurant (page 22) and the Transfandago event (page 6). Check out a short video of the charity event FREE at the first ever tranny television station on the internet. Jodie and Sarah Staar's new website 'Trannylife' has a variety of video clips on a 'pay per view' basis including the entire journey of a transsexual girl who is currently undergoing the process of gender reassignment. Check out the FREE sample report on the Transfandago Charity event at www.trannylife.com.

TRANNY IDOL Steffan announces (page 16) a fresh new that she will be joined on the first Wednesday of the month by talented singer Miss Dee Chanelle and her friends. This evening is called "Muse" @ The House of Drag. On the last Saturday of each month WayOut Star Search becomes "Drag Academy" with £150 prize to be split as the audience sees fit to dancers, singers and mime artists. Steffan will be offering an 'Academy Membership' with invites to appear in WayOut shows. We believes "Muse" and "Drag Academy" will be a spring board to more live shows at The WayOut Club. Who knows we may even create a tranny singing group and a tranny dance troupe - "Tranny Idols".

FABULOUSRichard O'Brien's
Transfandango EVENT REVIEW

Friday the 27th September 2002 was the date that myself and many of my gorgeous Boudettes were looking forward to. This was the date we were to pack up and leave London behind for a weekend of fun and glamour in Manchester at The Transfandango Weekend and we could not wait.

By Jodie Lynn

All of my team and clients were booked into The Palace Hotel where the ball was to take place the next evening. The hotel reception is impressive and slightly gothic which really suited the theme of the weekend to come. The hotel rooms were incredibly spacious and our bathroom was absolutely huge.

Saturday the 28th September started with a full English buffet which set us up nicely for the day. Then it was off to our room to prepare our contestant for The Drag Race at High Noon. Miss Nicola Smith, the most down to earth, undrag like tranny that you could ever meet allowed us to perform a drag makeover on her with a special race day drag outfit by the very talented Miss Sarah Lloyd. After a very fraught delay involving hotel elevators a taxi outside whisked us off to the shopping centre.

"The nicest thing about the Transfandango weekend was socialising in a totally non-threatening environment with a mixed crowd. There were TV's, TS's, Drag Queens, guys, girls and celebrities!! The worst part of the weekend was going home!! The other thing I found hard was going to work the next day and not being able to tell anyone why I had such a great weekend!!" NICOLA SMITH

The gurls had to carry their eggs on a giant spoon and complete an assault course hosted by Richard O'Brien himself. Rossita, (one of the WayOut Girls) whisked around the course in no time at all and went on to win the fastest around the course. Sadly our Nicola was too busy trying to be a lady and did not clock up a very fast time, but she did go on to win The Best Outfit and The Most Money Raised for Charity. We managed to raise nearly £500 from generous hearted Boudettes in recent months and in fact we raised a third of the total money raised for the entire race!! Nicola walked away with £100 fetish wear voucher and £400 voucher for a holiday with First Choice and of course we were all beaming from ear to ear. What a triumph for Nicola and The Boudoir!!

I will never forget this weekend as not only did we have yet another chance to glam up and show off, but we also bonded as a group of people who all have a shared passion and like to get together. Long Live The Boudettes and bring on the next Transfandango Ball!!! JAYNIE TRASH

So back at the hotel every single one of our eleven gurls was made up, styled and dressed and at the Champagne reception in the hotel bar, bang on time!! The three workers however just made it in time for the first course of the meal at the ball!!!

cheques from various people for the Bone Marrow Unit Appeal. Richard seemed to be particularly touched by a £7,000 cheque presented to him by the students from Manchester University who he had been working with to raise money. It was moments like that which made you realise what a thoroughly nice man Richard O'Brien is. To see someone of his talent and fame, so overwhelmed was lovely.

"What can I say...every minute was amazing. Being a part of such a lovely group of people who are so easy to get on with at such a classy and well-organised affair was sheer bliss!! Book me in for next year!!" REBECCA DAVIDS

The cabaret began with The WayOut Girls who performed in very brightly coloured costumes, Copacabana, Lady Marmalade and a Rocky Horror Medley. Maxine Barry who won Stars in their Eyes as Shirley Bassey was truly brilliant. Richard Straker also performed a set of songs ranging from Mr Bojangles right through to a Lionel Richie number. The highlight of the cabaret has to be when Richard O'Brien performed "The Time Warp" on his guitar and the whole room got up and did the dance... Just brilliant!!

By this time the our tables were absolutely jumping!! We were all having so much fun. The evening's entertainment ended with an Abba tribute band that belted out all the old favourites filling the dance floor.

The Transfandango Ball has to have been the best event that I have attended in my three years of working in the tranny community. Not just the Ball, but the whole weekend. From Friday to Sunday, myself, my team and all of The Boudettes laughed and smiled and thoroughly enjoyed every minute.

At the end of this amazing evening, we were all left very drunk, very happy and very glad that we had not only enjoyed one of the best weekends ever, but that we had raised money for kids that really need it - the icing on the cake. I can't wait to do it all again next year...apart from the lift episode!!

"I've been depressed ever since the ball. I just want to do it again every weekend. How will we ever top that Miss Lynn?" MELANIE WEXFORD

I would personally like to thank ALL the gurls that came with us to the Transfandango weekend. They were: Amanda Cloud, Beth, Debbie TV, Jaynie Trash, Kathy Tights, Melanie Wexford, Melissa, Nicola Smith, Rebecca Davids and Suzanne and my wonderful and hard-working team - Miss Tracie Ross and Miss Nas.

You can read a much longer version of this review on Jodie's website www.theboudoironline.com and you can watch a FREE short video report on her NEW pay-per-view internet television channel for trannies and admirers at www.tranny.tv

Upon walking into the Ball Room I gasped with amazement. The whole room looked totally amazing and so did all the people sitting at their tables. The only way that I can describe the atmosphere is that it was like all your most amazing New Year's Eve parties rolled into one. The atmosphere was absolutely electric. Everyone had made so much effort with their outfits and appearance and you could just tell that everyone was just so excited to be there. The whole room (which was huge) was purple and pink. Purple sequined cloths lined the tables and pink flowers and feathers made up the table centrepieces. On each of the seats was a bag of freebies for the evening. The bags contained camp items such as pink feather boas and cowboy hats along with free skin care samples.

The first course of the meal was a plate of fanned melon with a few winter fruits. Light and appetising and very fresh. The main course was roast lamb with a choice of vegetables and mint sauce - again very delicious. The dessert was a very sexy white chocolate mousse and biscuit base. Again, it was gorgeous.

At the end of the meal, Richard O'Brien - who was now incidentally in drag in a long blonde wig and long PVC dress and looking bizarrely fabulous - and Frankie Foo Foo Lammar began the auction. Foo Foo was great as the auctioneer and really got the excitement going. Items such as signed celebrity memorabilia, a day on a naval ship with a real life Captain and a beautiful ballet dress were all successfully auctioned off for good sums of money. Then Richard O'Brien was presented with a number of large

Richard O'Brien's
Transfandango

This event promised to be very special and it SUCCEEDED on two levels.

From the outset Richard O'Brien intended that this event not only help children who are suffering from cancer but also help transnics and those that love us to feel respect for ourselves. The event raised over £35,000 (the most successful single event the charity has enjoyed) and from the buzz that has gone around the country I know that those that attended know they were part of a ground breaking event.

The organising team have all agreed to repeat the event annually and the next one will be on the 27th Sept 2003 again midday at The Triangle followed by a Ball at the Palace Hotel Manchester.

The midday competition will be a "star search" style contest called High Camp @ High Noon. Eight individuals or groups will be chosen for the competition from audition video tapes or personal auditions at 'Churchills Manchester' or 'WayOut Club London' over the year preceding the event. All material must have the word 'high' in the title. The best act will perform at the ball and along with others will receive a great prize. It is never too soon to get your act together for the competition and your dress for the ball.

THEATRE REVIEW

The new wave of musical theatre that has hit the West End recently has been attracting alternative younger people and hippie chic urban / media fashionistas. The wave kicked off with musicals such as Rent, closely followed by the Pet Shop Boys' Closer To Heaven and now Taboo.

By Angel Zsa-Tsar

Taboo is a product of New Romantic writer Mark Davies and Eighties fashion and music icon Boy George. The name was derived from a nightclub that was once presided over by performance artist Leigh Bowery.

This musical skilfully weaves the bulk of the of the movements movers and shakers: Marilyn, Phillip Salon, Steve Strange, Leigh Bowery and Princess Julia and Boy George himself - with fictional characters Billy and Kim.

Billy is a wannabe, bi-curious photographer who falls in love with Kim, an aspiring designer who create costumes. These fictional elements are beautifully woven in with the real ones in an entertaining and educational way. The first half of Taboo glorifies the struggles and the heights of entertainment success and the second half illustrates the downward path of fame and fortune to drugs, loss of dignity and AIDS. However, it doesn't just leave you there, it concludes in India where Boy George and friends go to Bangalore in search of spiritual fulfilment and the meaning of life.

Taboo scores high points for portrayal of the characters. Euan Morton is Boy George's spitting image and sounds exactly like him. Gary Amers and Paul Baker are also great as Marilyn and Phillip Salon in their youth. The part of Leigh Bowery is considered the most vibrant role and over the year has been played by Matthew Lucas, Boy George, Mark Little and currently Julian Clary.

All these characters are superbly directed, choreographed and wardrobe. This musical is capable of living forever.

The first half really takes off when beautiful Marilyn in Razor heels 'sashays' into the scene singing a rock version of 'Genocide Peroxide', a Top 20 hit from Boy George's 'Cheapness and Beauty' album. Although some 80's hits such as Visage's 'Fade To Grey', Culture Club's 'Do You Really Want To Hurt Me' and 'Karma Karmeleon' are fused into the play, most of the songs are new, fresh and wittingly relevant displaying Boy George's song-writing skills.

The show benefits from being the first at 'The Venue', London's newest theatre, as one cannot help feel it was purpose built for Taboo.

Taboo is a "must see" musical with historical content to give us trannies a sense of our own history; with fashion tips and lipstick traces to linger over as well as juicy 80's lingo-banter to keep the nostalgia freaks happy. Go see it!
